

AMERICA'S WILD HORSES ARE IN CRISIS

For centuries horses have ploughed our fields and carried us into battle.

But today, they're caught in the crossfire over land use rights and a shrinking wild landscape, and America's wild horses are struggling to survive.

Join wildlife photographers Jamie Baldanza and Deb Lee Carson on their mission to document America's most elusive herds of wild horses and examine their politically complicated lives.

In the docuseries Wild Lands Wild Horses, beautiful cinematography is woven into exclusive conversations with scientists, ranchers, government officials, and wildlife advocates, who — despite their differences — all share the same goal:

TO KEEP THE WEST WILD.

WILD HORSES

A SPRAWLING ADVENTURE

Imagine if Anthony Bourdain made a wild west special for National Geographic ... but instead of Bourdain, it's two passionate horse advocates and their crew, on a mission to tell the story of western wildlife.

Wild Lands Wild Horses mixes sweeping cinematography, reality-style ride-alongs, and journalistic interviews that weave a tale of complexity and compassion.

AN EDUCATION ON THE RANGE

HAREM

PREGNANT MARE

BAND STALLION

His role is to protect his band from danger and increase his harem of mares and foals

YEARLING COLT

LEAD MARE

Understanding the history, behavior, and social structure of wild herds is crucial in finding a solution.

Wild Lands Wild Horses leverages the expertise of its hosts and interview subjects, and conveys vital information with crisp graphics and comprehensive maps.

AMERICA'S MOST ELUSIVE HERDS

Finding and photographing a family of wild horses is much harder than you think.

Each episode of Wild Lands Wild Horses tells the story of a native herd, their personalities, and the human factors that weigh on their lives.

HONEST STORIES

Wild Lands, Wild Horses is not here to preach.

Interviews with ranchers, advocates, scientists, government employees, and politicians combine to tell an honest story about the complexities of the modern American West, and the threats that face the remaining population of wild horses.

HOPEFUL STORIES

Adoption is a second chance for horses rounded up by the government.

Each episode of Wild Lands Wild Horses profiles a once-wild horse that has been adopted by a sanctuary, a loving home, or veteran programs.

MEET THE CREATORS

JAMIE - CREATOR / HOST

Jamie Baldanza has loved horses since birth, and quit her job as an advertising Creative Director to photograph wild horses across the U.S.

Today, she leverages her passionate Instagram following to raise awareness for the plight of these majestic animals.

Wild Lands is the culmination of her outstanding photography and tireless advocacy.

DEB - WRITER / HOST

Deb Lee Carson is a photographer and artist whose Fly Without Wings exhibit pays tribute to America's wild spirit, and has raised substantial funds for wild horse non-profit organizations.

Her new work, entitled Wild and Untethered, was exhibited at the Anderson Center in Red Wing, MN and was made possible by a grant from SEMAC.

Deb has more than 50 years of equine reproductive experience, 12 years observing wild horse behavior, and 3 years working as a field research technician with the CSU wild horse contraceptive study

Together they create a stress-free environment for the people they interview as they are nothing short of entertaining. On the flipside, as artists they feed off each other's talent and passion going above and beyond for the wild horse cause. The combination of their open hearts for the issues- and their ability to have a good time - brings such an interesting dynamic to the camera.
